

Fall 2026 Syllabus Statements

Your rights under federal laws:

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 / Americans with Disabilities Act

Westminster University is committed to providing equal access in higher education and creating a learning environment that meets the needs of its student body. If you anticipate or experience barriers to access based on disability, you may arrange a confidential meeting with Student Disability Services by email (disabilityservices@westminsteru.edu) or by phone (801.832.2272). Visit the Student Disability Services web page for more information.

Course Accessibility Statement

Westminster faculty aim to create courses that are inclusive in design. If you encounter barriers to your learning, please communicate directly with your instructor to determine if there are design adjustments that can be made. You may also consult with Student Disability Services, which works with students with disabilities and faculty members to identify reasonable accommodations. Faculty can consider creative solutions as long as they do not compromise the intent of the learning activity or assessment.

(Statement adapted from Wood and Madden, "Suggested Practices for Syllabus Accessibility Statements," 2022).

Types of Accommodations Available to Students

As a beginning step to assist the student in advocating their needs, here are some examples of accommodations that are frequently provided.

- Common Accommodations: Extended time on assessments; testing in an alternative location; breaks during exams; calculator or laptop access; access to audiobooks or other alternative text formats; accessible specific classroom seating/layout; accessible specific housing; and ASL interpreters.
- Assistive Technology/Other Services: Auxiliary aids and services can take many forms, such as audio recordings, text-to-speech programs, voice recognition software, etc., depending on the individual student's needs.
- Pregnancy Accommodations: Include without limitation to accessible seating, frequent restroom breaks, access to elevators or closer physical spaces, larger desks, lactation spaces and breaks for pumping or nursing needs, and remote learning options. For pregnancy accommodations, visit www.westminsteru.edu/titleix or contact, Title IX Coordinator, Jessica Brazell-Brayboy, PhD (801.832.2230), TitleIX@westminsteru.edu.

Non-Discrimination Statement

Westminster University does not discriminate based on race, color, pregnancy, childbirth, or pregnancy-related conditions, age, religion, national origin, disability, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, military status, and genetic information, or other legally protected status. The University's commitment to nondiscrimination applies to students, employees, and applicants for admission and employment.

Gender and Sex-Based Discrimination and Harassment (Title IX)

Westminster University and its faculty are committed to assuring a safe and productive learning environment for all students to fully access and participate in educational opportunities that is free of discrimination and sexual harassment. To this end, the University requires faculty members to report disclosures of sexual violence, discrimination, and harassment to the Title IX Coordinator, Jessica Brazell-Brayboy, PhD (801-832-2230, TitleIX@westminsteru.edu). All non-confidential employees are subject to this mandatory reporting.

Although mandatory reporters must make the notification, the person experiencing gender and/or sex-based discrimination or harassment will control how the case will be handled. For more information about the process after a report is submitted to the Title IX Coordinator, your rights and options for resolution, including requests for pregnancy accommodations, visit <https://westminsteru.edu/about/title-ix.html>.

If you wish to make a report alleging gender or sex-based discrimination or harassment, or request a pregnancy accommodation, please complete the online reporting form and submit relevant information directly to the Title IX Office and a member of the Title IX team will coordinate the appropriate response and initiate outreach to the impacted party.

Reporting Acts of Prohibited Conduct and Concerns

The community plays an integral role in ensuring the safety and security of its members. If you have been subject to, witness of, or have information about an incident or concern adversely affecting our community, please timely share this information by completing and submitting a Community Incident and Concern Report.
